

Pip and Timo build a friendship bridge

Little adventurers • 3-4 years old

Morning Map

Pip the rabbit wakes with a bright skip.

The meadow smells like mint and hay.

The sun peeks like a golden coin.

Pip smiles and pats his whiskers.

« I follow the sunny coin, » Pip says.

Timo the turtle yawns and nods.

« I like this race, » Timo says.

They choose a small morning goal.

They follow the sun to the far hill.

They make a map on a broad leaf.

Pip draws with sweet red berry juice.

Arrows mark stump, brook, and hill.

The leaf map feels brave and friendly.

It becomes their soft, pocket guide.

Timo hums a steady morning song.

Pip tucks the map under his ear.

The sun climbs and paints warm paths.

Shadows stretch and point like gentle fingers.

They set off, curious and calm.

The Sunny Path

Grass swishes around their ankles.

The map points to the old stump.

Pip hops up and sees the sun.

Pip points his paw toward the light and laughs.

Timo smiles and glides over leaves.

They meet a tall, soft clover field.

Pip breathes and chooses courage.

He hops high and peeks above clover.

« Follow my ears, » Pip says.

Timo moves steady, sure and slow.

His shell parts the clover like doors.

They reach a sunny patch and cheer.

Their shadows point toward the sun.

They use the leaf map and the shadow.

Clever steps lead to the next mark.

A brook sings at the hill's foot.

Water twinkles and skips over stones.

Pip lifts the map with careful paws.

The last arrow points across the brook.

The far hill glows with soft light.

They need a way over the water.

Pip thinks and taps his paw.

« We build a bridge, » Pip says.

Timo nods with a warm grin.

The Friendship Bridge

They search the banks for helpful things.

Smooth sticks wait under fern shadows.

Pip gathers light sticks in his paws.

Timo nudges strong sticks with his shell.

They weave sticks across two flat stones.

Leaves tuck in like soft pillows.

Water whispers under their careful work.

A small bridge grows, snug and kind.

« Almost there, » Pip says.

« Together is strong, » Timo says.

They add one last friendly stick.

Pip lays the leaf map on top.

« It is our Friendship Bridge, » Pip says.

They cross with easy, happy steps.

The far hill meets their feet at last.

The sun rests on the hill like honey.

Pip shares berries from a pocket of leaves.

Timo smiles and shares crisp clover sprigs.

« See you tomorrow, » Pip says.

« We follow again, » Timo says.

The sky turns peach, then soft blue.

Their bridge waits by the singing brook.

They curl near the bridge and rest.

The Friendship Bridge keeps watch, steady and kind.
